New in the Library
Visit the library and browse our books, new and old.
All students, faculty and staff are welcome.

Better than a bookstore. More convenient than your local library. Cheaper than a Kindle download.

On our shelves you’ll find: The Letter Q: Queer Writers’ Notes to Their Younger Selves edited by our own Sarah Moon • The Art of Fielding by Chad Harbach • The Swerve: How the World Became Modern by Stephen Greenblatt • The Darlings in Love by English teacher Melissa Kantor • IQ84 by Haruki Murakami • Green’s Dictionary of Slang by Jonathon Green; this tome is a totally fly-ass (look it up) addition to the library.

First Line: “They’re in our house maybe ten minutes and already Mark’s lecturing us about the Israeli occupation.”

First Line: “It is a truth universally acknowledged that a thirty-something woman in possession of a satisfying career and fabulous hairdo must be in want of very little, and Jane Hayes, pretty enough and clever enough, was certainly thought to have little to distress her.”

Released three days after the author’s death, this book won the 2012 Pulitzer Prize for history.

Spare, searing novel about the Rape of Nanjing, by the author of Waiting.

Novel of parallel worlds that has wowed some library patrons but left others cold.

It’s a book, too! And it’s as just about as good as the George Clooney movie.
